Art Event: Si com di l'eau - Spring Artist Reception

Date and Time: Saturday, June 15 2:00 pm - 4:00 pm

Address: 18 Carnegie Ln

A highly respected artist grounded in community and kinship, Baerg's practice traverses intermedia and laser cut abstract painting through visual language rooted in Indigenous ways of knowing, relationalities, and futurisms. Underpinned by Plains Cree medicine thinking, Baerg's continued exploration of the Cree medicine wheel in 2024 delves into its third blue, western quadrant - fluidly conceptualizing and honoring water, sage, the setting sun, and emotional health in addition to other seminal traditional teachings. These cyclical connections flow through the circular form and symbolism of the medicine wheel, echoed through the use of tondos in the space, evoking portals to speculative futures, while stacked compositions ground past and present, both gesturing to sky world.

Reflecting on the title, si com di l'eau, graciously bestowed on this body of work by elder Marjorie Beaucage, it translates to 'we are like water' in the Metis language, Michif. Through colour and symbolism, we are prompted to consider water's relationality, balance, and presence in all things and beings; its gentle nourishing characteristics; its presence in our bodies; its power; and its embodied connection to past and future ancestors. Water has the ability to exist in multiple states of matter, echoing the currents of life, and as a brimming vessel of epigenetic memories.

Through seductive surfaces, Baerg's work fluidly blurs the lines between critical theory, Indigenous iconography, and relationality through a thrilling use of abstraction and cutting-edge technology. The works on display have a propositional capacity to collaboratively implicate Indigenous and non-Indigenous audiences to imagine and therefore manifest collective futures for both present and future generations. We are like water. We must adapt and flow. Carve new paths slowly over time, or with radical force. Be permeable and be able to permeate. Nourish future generations, and excise collective care.

Jason Baerg is a Cree-Metis curator, educator, and visual artist. As a visual artist he pushes new boundaries in digital interventions in drawing, painting, and new media installation. Often through means of visual abstraction, Baerg's projects work with various themes such as language, the Anthropocene, and indigenous connections to land and the environment.

Dedicated to community development, Baerg founded Metis Artist Collective and has served as volunteer Chair for organizations such as the Aboriginal Curatorial Collective and the National Indigenous Media Arts Coalition.

Baerg graduated from Concordia University with a Bachelors of Fine Arts and a Masters of Fine Arts from Rutgers University. He is currently teaching as an Assistant Professor in Indigenous Practices in Contemporary Painting and Media Art at OCAD University. Recent international solo exhibitions include the Illuminato Festival in Toronto, the Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology in Australia, and the Digital Dome at the Institute of th e American Indian Arts in Santa Fe, New Mexico. His most recent curatorial project was a new media interactive engagement at Toronto's Nuit Blanche. Baerg has also adjudicated numerous art juries and won several awards through Canada Council for the Arts, the Ontario Arts Council, and the Toronto Arts Council.
